C. of C. Aims To Change Place And Time Of Meeting

Plan of Meeting After Kiwanis Favored By Majority

Plans for the new year were discussed by the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce at the January meeting, held Tuesday evening at the Woman's clubhouse. J. R. Lownes, the new president, and Harry Masters, the new secretary, officiated in their respective capacities for the first time, and a comparatively large attendance was recorded.

Considerable discussion was heard on the matter of a meeting place. The sentiment expressed generally favored holding the meetings on the second Tuesday evening of each month, instead of the second Monday evening, in order that the meetings could be held immediately following the Kiwanis club meetings at the Woman's clubhouse. Such arrangement not only would be a time saver for the members but would make for a larger attendance at the Chamber of Commerce meetings, the speakers on the subject stated. The matter was left to the directors to make final decision.

On request Rev. J. F. Roberts made a report on the status of the proposed recreation center for Ocean Beach and Past President Lloyd Greeson spoke briefly. Greeson stated that a Chamber of Commerce fills an important place in community life that can be filled by no other organization and said that there always arise community problems that cannot be satisfactorily handled by any other organization.

Traffic Safety At Dana Junior High Stressed

Dangers on Macaulay St. Pointed Out To City Manager

The San Diego police department is cooperating with Dana Junior high school in enforcing observance of safety regulations on the new cut-off highway in front of the school. Speeders who endanger lives of students by traveling at excessive speeds past the school are being picked up by motorcycle officers. Safety zones have been outlined and warning signs painted on pavements.

Student Safety committee members are checking to see that all students cross Chatsworth, Macaulay and Narragansett streets only at proper crossing zones and under the general supervision of Safety Commissioner Charles Pratt.

The dangerous "bottleneck" on Macaulay St. east of Dana Junior High has been called to the attention of City Manager Fred A. Rhodes and other city officials and it is hoped some way may be found to widen the street at this point and provide needed sidewalks and curbs. At present school children are forced to walk in the street and are in constant danger from passing autos who cannot see them over the crest of the hill, reports Principal Clarence Swenson.

USO VALENTINE DANCE SCHEDULED FOR FEB. 10

More girls interested in being junior hostesses are asked to go to the Ocean Beach USO clubrooms on lower Newport Ave. The ages are 16 to 35 and those interested can obtain further information by interviews at the USO.

The USO has scheduled a Valentine dance for servicemen and servicewomen, to be held at the clubrooms Saturday evening, Feb. 10.

Bonita Edson, senior in Point Loma high school, has been obliged to discontinue her studies there because of an attack of rheumatic fever She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Edson, former residents of Ocean Beach, who are now living in East San Diego.

To Head Royal Neighbors Lodge Here

Grace Rippee, Oracle — Mary Fold, Vice Oracle

The two Ocean Beach women pictured above will head the list of new officers of the local Royal Neighbors lodge to be installed tonight at induction ceremonies starting at 8 o'clock at the Woman's clubhouse. Enid Markham of Enid Camp, San Diego, district deputy, will be the installing officer. The public is invited.

Unit Of State Guard Is Planned For Ocean Beach

At Least Thirty Men Needed To Assure Platoon Here

A platoon of California State Guard for Ocean Beach is the plan of T/Sgt O. L. Smith of 4532 Long Branch Ave. At least 30 men are needed to make a sure thing of the unit, he said Company E, of which Smith is a member, already has been organized in San Diego and the plan is to have three companies.

The platoon would be formed here for convenience of Ocean Beach men wishing to join and would be trained here for the convenience of local men, thereby also saving gas. Training will start as soon as a sufficient number of men sign up, announced Smith. He said any man between 18 and 64 who can pass the physical examination is eligible for membership. Training periods twice a week is planned, one of which will be on Sunday. Members, however, need not train for more than one period a week, he stated.

All Ocean Beach men interested are invited to contact Smith, Bayview 4233, for further details, or see him at 4532 Long Branch Ave.

In the fall of 1940 as the National Guard units were being inducted into the Army of the United States, Federal recognition was given by Congress to the State Guard as a local protective force to act in the place of the National Guard until its return. The California State Guard was completely re-organized July 1, 1943.

This training program is supervised by U. S. Army officers. Staff instructors apply the modern training methods and aid developed by the Army. Training films in sound, showing Army maneuvers and the use of military tactics, class lectures and blackboard talks, indoor range practice with small bore weapons, scheduled field days for firing of heavy weapons, in actual combat maneuvers —all of these phases represent a complete military education. This program is offered to right-thinking citizens who are interested in the security of their own community.

The period of enlistment is for the "duration" and until the return of the National Guard.

All clothing and field equipment is G. I. and is furnished by the federal government. There are three complete uniforms: olive drab, suntans and field denims. Shoes, helmet and all incidental equipment are also furnished each man.

In the event of a local disaster or emergency that is beyond the control of local authorities, the State Guard provides the needed military protection of life and property. This aid is requested from the governor by the local authorities.

The State Guard serves only in each unit's respective county. The State Guard Act (A.B. 1929) provides ". . . no member shall, without his consent, serve outside the county in which he enlisted."

The State Guard is not a Federal force. State Guard forces cannot be called, ordered or drafted in Federal service as such.

14 To Graduate From Point Loma High On Jan. 26

Fourteen seniors are scheduled to graduate from Point Loma high school at the conclusion of the first semester, which will be Friday, Jan. 26, the board of education of the city of San Diego announced this week. The number for all the high schools in the city is only 371, the smallest total in many years, the board members state. The decrease is stated to be due to the gradual elimination of the mid-term graduation policy. After this year there will be only the regular June end-of-the-school year graduation in San Diego high schools, the board's statement declared.

At Point Loma high school, the nine boys and five girls slated to graduate at the mid-term this year are the following:

Girls—Pauline Hamilton DeHaven, Dorothy Jane Dutra, Betty Rowe Johnston, Mary Rita Lester, Mary Louise Wenrich.

School Wins Bond Flag

Point Loma High Wednesday became the first high school in San Diego eligible to fly the "Schools at War" flag for two consecutive months.

Anne Carmody, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Carmody, of 4866 Niagara Ave., chairman of the bonds and stamps committee, explained that in order to fly the "Minute Man" flag the school must have 95 percent participation in the purchase of war stamps and bonds. Figures are tabulated each month by a five-man committee and if the required number of students have bought bonds, the flag is hoisted and flies under the national colors each school day that month.

Realty Sales In Ocean Beach Up 81 From 1943

593 Realty Transfers Listed Here During Past Year

Realty sales in Ocean Beach in 1944 reached the new high total of 593, according to the summary for the past year prepared by the Southern Title & Trust Company of San Diego. In 1943 Ocean Beach had 512 transfers and 411 in 1942, so there has been a considerable increase each year, according to the report. Commenting on the real estate transfer situation generally in San Diego for the past year the company reports as follows:

A faster tempo in the real estate market reflects the extent of change in San Diego due to World war II. Increases in population, more and larger pay checks and many other factors have contributed. In the entire city there were 67 percent more real estate transfers in 1944 than in 1942—two years ago. The increase over the record year of 1943 was 22 percent.

Total transfers numbered 23,976, which were divided almost evenly between the area within the city limits of San Diego, and the area in San Diego county outside the city of San Diego. Every district showed an increase excepting one, where the decrease was very small.

Within the city, the beach areas—Pacific and Mission beaches, showed the greatest percentage of increase last year, amounting to 34 percent. Greatest increase in number was in the Logan Heights area, with 435 more transfers than in 1943.

Outside the city, Coronado led with 60 percent increase, while La Mesa had the greatest numerical increase with 497 more transfers than in 1943.

Number of new residential building permits fell off further from last year's low. This, of course, was due to restrictions on building because of scarcity of materials for other than war purpsose. Many builders and real estate brokers feel that this condition is building up a backlog of residential building, particularly in certain sizes and price ranges, which will be released after the war.

Lieut. R. H. Davis In Limelight For Exploits As Pilot

Lieut. Robert H. Davis of 2322 Evergreen St., a former Point Loma high school student, was in the limelight this week in the press dispatches telling of his battle exploits in the Pacific theatre of the war, the occasion being his return home on a 30-day leave. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Davis.

He is a member of the famous "Two-a-Day 18" top ranking carrier-based Navy fighter squadron. Since he was assigned to the fleet in August 1943 he has aided in establishing his squadron's record of 172 Jap planes shot out of the South Pacific skies. He is the holder of a Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal and Gold Star in lieu of a second Distinguished Flying Cross. The press accounts of his opinion of the Japs quote him as saying:

"Jap pilots in general lack the 'team' spirit that inspires American effort. When they see us coming they usually take off in the other direction as though they were primarily bent on saving their individual skins. If they'd only stay in formation, they could give a much better account of themselves."

MRS. MUNCHIANDO NAMED NEWS CORRESPONDENT FOR BAY BRIDGE AREA

For the accomodation of residents of the Bay Bridge and Voltaire St. sections of Ocean Beach, The News has made arrangements with Mrs. Daisy Munchiando of 4681 Green St. to be a news correspondent in that section. Folks there finding it inconvenient to contact The News office can telephone news of their social affairs and personal news items to her, Bayview 4463. Monday and Tuesday is preferred for turning in these news items.

State Legislature Places Kraft On Head Committees

Assemblyman Fred H. Kraft of Ocean Beach has been assigned to the chairmanship of the important public health and sanitation committee of the assembly at Sacramento and to membership on several other leading committees for this session of the state legislature. They include the committees on ways and means, on taxation and revenue, on military affairs and on fish and game.

The committee of which he has been named chairman will have before it Gov. Earl Warren's bill proposing "adequate medical care" to Californians on "a prepaid basis." In his message to the legislature, the governor suggested "that this be accomplished by building a fund, through payroll deductions from both employer and employee, from which the costs of medical care can be financed. Such a program will pay dividends to everyone. It will relieve suffering and anguish in the home. It will increase efficiency in the shop and office. It will relieve our counties of much of their load of the indigent sick. It will make our citizens a healthier and therefore a happier people."

Kraft also has been named as one of the five Republican floor leaders of the assembly.

A Thursday's press dispatch from Sacramento stated that Kraft has introduced a bill to allow al nose drops to be sold without requiring a physician's prescription.

Pointers Outscore Vocational 28 to 20 In Overtime Game

Class B and C Teams Also Win In Hoop Games Friday

With Jay Timmons, elongated center, sinking the basketball for 18 points, the Point Loma high school Pointers racked up their second win of the season in the Victory league games Friday afternoon, 28 to 20, at the expense of the Vocational school hoopsters. The game which was played on the latter's court, was deadlocked at 19-all at the end of the regular playing time. In the overtime period, however the Pointers rang up nine markers to only one by Vocational.

Hamlin 2, and Stone 2, forwards; Timmons 18, center; Medina 1, and Silva guards; and Kellio 4 and Larsen 1. The latter two were sent into the play following the start of the game.

Point Loma also won the Class B team game from Vocational 31 to 25 and the Class C team game from Coronado by a count of 40 to 13, and dropped the class D game to Coronado by a 31-11 score. The latter two games were played at Point Loma.

In other Victory league Class A games Friday, Hoover beat Sweetwater 44 to 12 and La Jolla won from Kearny 39 to 13.

Double Benefit Received By Local Woman Held Legal

Charges that Mrs. Mary Lee Pollock of Voltaire St. had illegally received double checks for two of her children were dismissed Monday by Federal Judge Leon Yankwich at the request of Mrs. Betty Marshall Graydon, assistant U. S. attorney.

Mrs. Pollock, it was said, had two children by her first husband and one by her second. Husband entered the marines and ex-husband the navy at about the same time. The ex-husband reported he had two chilren and government allowances were made for them, payable to Mrs. Pollock. Pollock reported dependency of his wife, one child and two stepchildren and allowances were made for all of them. Thus the first two children got double allowances.

Mrs. Graydon said the U. S. dependents' law permits allowances to children and stepchildren and there is nothing in the statutes that seems to cover the current case.

City Seeks To Make Sunset Cliffs Safe

Accident To Plaisted Boy Brings Danger To Attention

Leland Plaisted's accident of Dec. 28 when he narrowly escaped death in a 30-foot fall from a cliff at the foot of Pescadero Ave. has concentrated attention of the city council on the dangers of the crumbling banks in the Sunset Cliffs section of Ocean Beach. Several residents there have urged the city to take measures to safeguard the children of that area.

As a result the council this week issued a directive to City Manager Fred A. Rhodes, Park Supt. H. Allen Perry and City Engineer Hans Jorgenson to make a study of how to remove these dangerous conditions. These men are asked to submit to the council an estimate of the cost of making this area safe for pedestrians, at least, and as far as possible for the children.

Rhodes had suggested that city funds be listed in the new budget to care for such protective work, and that the council take steps to make the area reasonably safe.

Leland Plaisted Sr., father of the injured boy, says that during the 15 years he has been an Ocean Beach fireman he has been called again and again to help rescue injured persons from the foot of these cliffs.

Band To Give Concert

Closing this semester's programs in the auditorium, Anne Parrish, commissioner of cultural affairs, announces the Point Loma band will present its semi-annual concert. There will be two performances at 9:10 and again at 9:50, January 18. Parents and friends are cordially invited to all assembly programs. Edward Janowsky is director of this group.

"When the Music Plays Again," a one-act play, will be presented for the Nautical club, Monday, January 22, 1:30, at the San Diego club. This is the fourth in a series of five workshop plays from the advanced drama class. Those making up the cast include Rosamond Decker, Betty Johnston, Susie Gerhauser, Ruth Kuhl and Mary Rimell, student director. Helen Williams, as student manager, will assist.

"The Boy Comes Home," one-act comedy by A. A. Milne, is the last in the series. This play will be given for the Ocean Beach Woman's club, February 8 at 2:30. The advanced drama students in this cast are Tom Brogan, Alvan Mitchell, Eveline Barclay, Mary Gonsalves, Gloria Garcia and Barbara Tooze, student director.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Hansen and son, Gilbert, of 4925 Del Monte Ave. arrived home Thursday from Eugene and Portland, Ore., where they had visited their daughter and with other relatives.

Friendship Really Brings Pleasure Asserts Speaker

Past Secretary Mills In Farewell Talk To Kiwanis

Friendship and fellowship really pay big dividends, emphasized Capt. Burritt S. Mills, past secretary of the Ocean Beach Kiwanis club in his farewell address before the club Tuesday evening. He was introduced by Glenn Jones, program chairman for the evening.

Capt. Mills is leaving Ocean Beach this week to get ready to resume his previous business as an importer and exporter, with headquarters in Paris.

The speaker drew from his experiences in his travels in Europe and other places examples to prove the point that being a friend, even to strangers, gets results especially in aiding materially to the pleasure of living. "It's a two-way proposition," he said. "It's a lot of fun being nice to people and I am surprised that more folks do not cry it. Don't be afraid to speak to others. What this world needs is to forget differences in nationalities, race, and creed."

Previous to the talk President Jerry Sullivan on behalf of the club presented Capt. Mills with a past secretary's pin and a pin signifying he had a record of four years of 100 percent club meeting attendance.

Visitors at the meeting were Jack Shoemaker, Sanford Engel and Warren Burdine, all of Ocean Beach.

Dr. Alfred Sand will be program chairman for next week's meeting, and is arranging for a speaker.

Church To Sponsor Christian Science Lecture In Town

Christian Science church of Ocean Beach, located on Cable St., is busy preparing for a lecture on Christian Science to be given in First Church of Christ, Scientist, at 2442 Second Ave. in San Diego the coming Sunday, Jan. 21, starting at 3 p. m.

Arthur C. Whitney of Chicago, who is a member of the board of lectureship of the "Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, will be the speaker. His subject as announced is "Christian Science, a Religion of Answered Prayer."

The committee announces that the public is cordially invited to attend and hear Mr. Whitney.

THE OCEAN BEACH NEWS

A JOLT TO PUBLIC CONFIDENCE—

It is unfortunate that OPA saw fit to cancel without notice the ration points that housewives had been so religiously conserving. It was, in effect, the breaking of a contract. Millions of women had been saving their points to use only if needed, as they understood the points were good indefinitely. The person who saved was therefore penalized.

Such tactics seem to be an inevitable part of asked by OPA for stores alleged to have sold goods in violation of the new regulation, when the only information the stores had on the sweeping changes was from news stories.

In specific cases in Portland, Oregon, the attorney for food stores said: "Enforcement officials of the local OPA had previously advised these operators that they were not being run by the newspapers and that only their own releases were official and that no changes were to be made until official notice had been given by the OPA."

On top of this, 'business suspension' orders were bureaucracy which the people must endure as part and parcel of wartime controls. The congressional investigation that is suggested may in some measure restore public confidence. Facts rather than secrecy are the most potent weapons in maintaining public morale.

WHAT'S BUZZIN'!

By CHERIE.

At San Francisco, Sun. Jan. 14

Although there's merriment at its peak here in San Francisco—it is noticeably tinged with sobriety reflecting the tensity of the times. It's a respect and admiration for the young men in uniforms, who constitute a great percentage of the supper crowds today, as well as a deeper feeling for those who are overseas . . .

Almost entirely absent are the once popular dinner jackets. Here and there you'll see a chap wearing one, but he's usually a celebrity who has just made a personal appearance . .

Let's glance around, starting high up on Nob Hill here at Mark Hopkins Hotel . Geo. Hamilton and his orchestra are beating out smooth and slickful rhythms for Peacock Courtets. There's a bit of social grace and fine manners about George that one can't help but detect.

Then on to Palace Hotel's Rose room where Henry Buse is playing his inimitable shuffie rhythms that only he can tease out of a trumpet. (Incidentally did you know that he invented the 'mute?' For playgoers, the "legit" offers Zazu Pitts who's giving a terrific performance in "Ramshackle Inn" at "The Curran." It is dedicated to both chills and laughter, and Zazu's clowning is as amusing as ever . . . For an after-theatre snack, Kit Carson's is the "hangout" for the Geary Street stage folk . . I'd make it a point to drop in at Joe DiMaggio's Yacht club on Fisherman's Wharf—and try their sea food specialties—but for real, honest to goodness American food, I favor the Golden Pheasant and The Dominoe Club. . . Omar Khayyam is famous the world over for his Armenian style cooking. You can't pronounce it—but you can sure eat it! . . . If it's French cuisine you're after, try Jack's and Solaris. Or for a touch of the "old world" The Cable Car with its sawdust and candlelight. . . And we musn't miss Chinatown. It covers an area of 15 square blocks and houses about 15,000. As we enter Chinatown, St. Mary's Park is first point of interest in which is located the statue of Dr. Sun Yet Sen who was the father of the Chinese Republic. The main "stem," so to speak, of this little colony is Grant Avenue with its pagoda gables, bazaars, and some of the finest shops, restaurants and night clubs . . . A word or two about those two gigantic spans—East Bay Bridge and Golden Gate Bridge. The towers on E. Bay Bridge are 500 feet high and the bridge is 227 feet above the bay. Golden Gate bridge is the longest single span in the world. A United States lighthouse sits upon one of its towers which surpasses most penthouses, for the tower is 746 feet high . . Here's hoping I haven't bored you—but if you've visited in San Francisco, you know what I mean. (Of course, you can't beat Ocean Beach for friendliness and climate!

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

EUROPE: Tables Turned

With U. S. forces having reacted quickly to Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's great winter offensive, which carried deep into the hilly Ardennes forest, the big German bulge in southeastern Belgium shrank under the steady hammering of the American First and Third armies ploughing forward in swirling blizzards.

As elements of the First and Third armies punched at the western nose of the Nazi bulge, other units of these tried battle forces gouged into the north and south flanks and advanced within a dozen miles of each other, threatening to cut the German sack in two.

But even as the First drove southward from Malempre and the Third northward from Longchamps, Von Rundstedt was reported setting up a new defense line half-way back from his deepest penetration, with strong Nazi armored formations throwing in constant counter-attacks in a deadly battle of attrition to cover up the move.

With both sides bringing their heaviest weight to bear in the withering battle of Belgium, and with Von Rundstedt seemingly determined to continue the fight in the hilly Ardennes, the enemy appeared to have temporarily succeeded in turning the struggle away from the vital Ruhr and Saar valleys, heart of his heavy industries.

As the Allies threw their full weight into the battle, it was revealed that elements of the British Second army joined the U. S. First in the attacks on the northern flank of the bulge, and Field Marshal Montgomery was given overall command of forces in this sector. Not only the British Second but elements of the U.S. Ninth and Seventh armies also were moved into the line to mount increasing pressure, the Nazis said.

With the withdrawal of the major strength of the Third army from the southern end of the western front, U. S. troops dropped back from extensive holdings in the Saar and Palatinate in the face of heavy German pressure designed to exploit the realignment of forces.

New Regimes

Europe's troubled political affairs took two new turns, with the formation of a liberal government in Greece expected to end civil strife, and the Russian - sponsored Lublin committee's establishment of a provisional government for liberated territory looked upon to further complicate the Polish problem.

Although Gen. Nicholas Plastiras assumed leadership of the new Greek government, principal attention was focused on Foreign Minister John Sofianopoulos, 57-year-old agrarian liberal, whose inclusion in the cabinet foreshadowed a sufficiently liberal policy to attract revolting Leftists.

In declaring itself the provisional government of liberated Poland, the Lublin committee, which favors territorial concessions to the Russians and a regime friendly to Moscow, clashed with the Allied - backed Polish government-in-exile in London, which contests Red land claims and radical internal social policies.

INSIDE GERMANY

Reliable and uncolored reports emanating from inside Germany indicate that the Nazis appear to possess both the manpower and the material to string out the war on the western front.

It took Von Rundstedt's lightning thrust into Belgium with 200,000 men to point up the Germans' ability to replenish their shattered western armies after the rout in France. These troops' supply of grade A weapons also focused attention on the Nazis' industrial machine.

PACIFIC: Step Up Attacks

With General MacArthur's forces consolidating their positions in the central Philippines, U. S. airmen stepped up their attack on enemy shipping and installations about the main island of Luzon to the north. At the same time, carrier - borne aircraft blasted the Japs' big air bases of Formosa and Ryukyu, serving as reinforcement centers for the Philippines.

The anxious Japs themselves looked nervously to an American invasion of Luzon, with the enemy trying to comfort himself with the assumption that he had sufficient forces to meet a thrust there, and shorter supply lines favored him.

Not only did U. S. bombardment of shipping about Luzon hamper the movement of materials about the main island itself, but it also imperiled the movement of material to the southern islands.

CONGRESS: Rolls Up Sleeves

In assembling for its first session, the 79th congress faced a stiff job on both foreign as well as domestic issues relating not only to the successful prosecution of the war, but to permanent peace as well.

In international affairs, of course, recent incidents in Poland, Greece and Italy are expected to lead toward congressional pressure for a stricter definition of our foreign policy, while attention also will be devoted toward the development of an organization to preserve the peace with proper respect toward the interests of all nations.

On the home front, the manpower problem will remain foremost, with need for maintaining an adequate production force and at the same time meeting military demands for more men. The line against inflation also will have to be held in the face of higher wage and price demands.

FARM DRAFT: Seek Youth

Asserting that War Food Administrator Marvin Jones had advised him that no critical reduction in farm production would result, War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes called for the induction of deferred farm workers between 18 and 26 years of age.

J. F. Byrnes

There are approximately 364,000 young men in this group, it was revealed, and Byrnes asked Selective Service to apply the most crucial standards in the further deferment of any of them. With the army calling for young men, he said, the only alternative would be to induct 26 to 29-year-olds in war industry, a move which the War Production board warned might hamper munitions output.

Farm state senators were quick to protest Byrnes' action, Senators Reed (Kan.) and Johnson (Colo.) citing department of labor statistics to show that the average work week in industry dropped to 46.1 hours in one year ended September, 1944.

Said Johnson: "From these statistics, it doesn't take a smart man to discover ways and means of decreasing the manpower shortage. . . . "

Heroes' Gallery

Maj. Gen. Orvil A. Anderson, deputy commander of Lieut. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle's Eighth air force, is well known to scientists and army men in Washington as the pilot who in 1935 guided the world's largest balloon to the greatest height ever attained by man. The helium-lifted balloon climbed to 13.71 miles, remaining there for nearly two hours for observation of numerous scientific phenomena of the upper air.

CIVILIAN GOODS: 1945 Prospects

With the European war having taken an unfavorable turn, and the nation's total resources needed for continued record production of war materials, there will be little improvement in stocks of civilian goods through 1945, the War Production board predicted.

With the frozen stockpile down to 45,000 units, and resumption of production unlikely until after the European war when almost six months will be needed for reconversion, mechanical refrigerators will remain practically unavailable. If manufacturers can start on production of 375,000 all-steel ice-boxes, civilians will receive about 56,000 a quarter in 1945.

Of 35,000 electric ranges authorized for 1945, civilians are to get 65 per cent, while about 1,200,000 electric irons will be assembled. Some aluminum kitchenware will reach the market but output of cast iron, enamel and galvanized utensils probably will remain down, primarily because of manpower shortages.

Although WPB authorized production of 319,492 vacuum cleaners in 1945—a fraction of the peacetime output of 1,903,000 annually—actual manufacture may fall short of goal. Because of the increasing scarcity of lumber, the supply for furniture is expected to remain short. Production of innerspring mattresses will be negligible for at least six months.

Only for small electrical appliances are prospects described as brighter.

House Wanted

Having literally sung himself into the senate, Idaho's crooning solon, Sen.-elect Glenn Taylor sought to sing himself into a home in crowded Washington, D. C.

Gathering his attractive brunette wife and two children about him on the cold steps of the capitol, and

"O, give us a home, near the capitol dome,
With a yard where little children can play—
Just one room or two, any old thing will do—
O, we can't find a pla-a-a-ce to stay!"

Until the Senator's song strikes a responsive chord in some landlord's heart, the Taylors will live in a hotel.

UN-AMERICANISM: To Resume Inquiries

The new house had barely settled into its seats before Rep. John Rankin (Miss.) set it agog by pushing through the formation of a new committee on un-American activities to succeed ex-Rep. Martin Dies' defunct investigating committee, bitter target of liberal elements.

Representative Rankin resorted to a legislative coup in having the house approve the organization of a new committee, suddenly inserting his proposal as an amendment to the rules being considered for the current session. Seventy Democrats joined 137 Republicans in voting for the proposal while 186 votes were counted against it.

Unlike the Dies committee, which concerned itself with investigation, the new committee on un-American activities will have the power to draft legislation for correction of abuses and submit it to the house for passage.

BANKS: U. S.'s Biggest

Biggest bank in the world, the Chase National of New York wound up its 1944 business with a record-breaking total of $5,160,004,000 in resources, of which $4,835,219,000 were deposits. Holding of government securities reached almost $3,000,000,000.

Not far behind Chase's was the National City Bank of New York, with assets of $4,469,686,465, of which $4,205,072,012 were in deposits. Also of New York, the Guaranty Trust company finished the year with resources of $3,826,161,882.

Biggest bank west of the Alleghanies, the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company of Chicago wound up 1944 with $2,619,821,039 in resources, of which $2,447,740,085 were in deposits. The bank held over 1½ billion dollars in government securities.

TVA

With gross revenues of $35,429,000, the Tennessee Valley authority realized net income of $14,116,000 on power operations for the year ending June 30, 1944. Electricity production exceeded 10 billion kilowatt hours and the agency also turned out 100,000 tons of calcium carbide for synthetic rubber, 130,000 tons of ammonium nitrate for fertilizer, and 9,000 tons of dicalcium phosphate for mixed stock feeds.

Partly because of the draft, TVA employment dropped to 21,000.

BAY BRIDGE BUSINESSMEN PROMOTE AREA

(By Brent Wright)

Last week business people in the Bay Bridge area inaugurated a four-week series of advertisements in The News, pointing out the advantages of trade values in their particular locale, stressing the advent of new enterprises.

Among the newest is a new sign company at 2183 Bacon St. Eating places also have blossomed forth under new managerships, with an end to pleasing the appetities of this and other neighborhoods for the most fastidious persons.

First of these to get under way is the Ocean Village Cafe, managed by Mary S. Dillon and Rose Gomez. The establishment is privately owned and operated by these experienced restauranteurs, who specialize in banquets and dinne parties. It is to be noted that all chickens, rabbits and vegetables used on their menus are raised ranch-fresh on their own lands adjacent to San Diego.

Hank and Stella Schaefer come to the fore again with management of the Bay Bridge Cafe. (Known to Ocean Beach residents for their talent to prepare excellent foods, the couple expect to build up a steady clientele of hearty eaters who have long known their choice preparations.

Many other enterprises not generally known to residents of this community also are available to the general public in the Bay Bridge area. These will be reviewed in early issues of The Ocean Beach News.

Writes Of Visit To WAVES Barracks In San Francisco

Mrs. Albert Munchiano of 4681 Green St. writes the following interesting account of her recent visit to the WAVES barracks in San Francisco, where she visited her daughter, WAVE Alice C. Munchiando, who expects to be assigned soon to overseas duty.

During a recent visit to San Fancisco, I had the pleasure of going thru the WAVE barracks. I was simply amazed at the facilities the government has provided for these "Women Blue Jackets." Not that they don't deserve it, for I never saw so many healthy, happy, young women in one group, where a spirit of "Hail Fellow, well met," friendliness, reigns supreme and each woman goes about her duties as if she really enjoyed them.

The WAVE barracks there, which are located in the midst of the down town section, have been converted from what was the "Western Women's club." The building is 10 to 12 stories high and has ample room for the living quarters of these women. A Navy blue canopy stretches out from the entrance to the street, and the word "WAVES" is printed on all sides.

Through a big door and into a huge entrance hall, and you suddenly realize you are being closely scrutinized by the "Master At Arms," and two Shore Patrol who walk back and forth. Believe me nothing escapes the snarp eyes of these men. There is a glass enclosure in the center of the hall with a WAVE in attendance, and here is where all WAVES must "log" in at night and check out in the morning. This is also where visitors must get passes to go through the building, but any guest is welcome to wait in the main lounge for his or her favorite WAVE.

The huge lounge for guests is comfortably furnished, with a radio, tables, lamps, deep restful chairs and davenports in rich rose upholstery, all arranged in friendly, semi-circular groupings. It was the holiday season and a large Christmas tree stood in front of a large mirror which reflected the gleaming ornaments. Several couples of sailors and WAVES, talked quietly and listened to Christmas carols.

Also on this floor are the executive and ships company offices, the ships store, beauty salon, tailor, scuttlebut (fountain) where everyone congregates to talk over the happenings of the day.

We took the elevator and went up to the second deck where the theatre and game room are located. The theatre has ample seating capacity and pictures are shown three times a week. The game room is equipped with all modern games.

On the seventh deck I visited the living quarters of my daughter and three other girl.. This room had four bunks, two upper and two lower ,a small desk, chairs, dresser, private bath, and windows with a grand view of the whole city.

Lounges are on the ninth and tenth decks, each equipped with a quarter deck and out-side phone.

The mess hall is on the tenth deck, adjoining an over-grown kitchen where everything is spotless and ship-shape. Row after row of tables, and a big Christmas tree and decorations, lending a holiday air. Large windows in this hall overlook Knob Hill and the Bay and all of 'Frisco. Also on this floor is the library with a huge fire-place and radio.

The girls say the chow is grand and the ships cooks are the best. They all gain weight, even under strenuous training at Hunter College in N. Y. where all WAVES take their "indoctrination."

Down in the elevator to the ships hold (basement to you) where there is a beautiful swimming pool, the water sparkling green and inviting. The girls love this pool and spend many happy hours here. There are private lockers, showers, hair dryers etc. Nothing is omitted which would add to the comfort and convenience of the WAVES.

On this floor is the laundry or wash-room, as the girls call it. It would make any house-wife envious to see this equipment. Plenty of hot water, row after row of well made ironing boards, electric irons, lines above to hang ironed garments. This room is so well lighted that it rivals bright sunlight. Adjoining this is a spacious drying room where a complicated, hot air circulating system dries the clothes in an hour. Long lines of sparkling white and blue blouses, hose, slips and other feminine finery, attest to the fact that Uncle Sam's women sailors know their laundry tips.

Again on the "Quarter Deck," and on my way out, I saw bulging sacks of incoming mail, and was told that there are just as many out-going, proving that our women of the service are just as keen for mail as our men in the service. A shining faced girl ran past me, hugging to her heart with both arms, a package she had just received.

Just a final word, many of these girls are miles from home, some of them for the first time, and some of them are lonely, especially at the holiday season, and they miss their families and homes just as much as our servicemen, so won't you ask a WAVE to your home sometime, you will enjoy it. These girls volunteered their services, and are happy to do their bit for the war effort.

God bless our WAVES!, Long may they wave!

—Daisy Munchiando

Ocean Beach Camp & Hospital

By ONA E. PITCOCK
Phone B-5639

Has anyone a weight lifting machine to donate to Camp and Hospital? This is badly needed. It is used as you know, to hold up broken limbs while they are healing.

Also Red Cross would like a used lawn mower. If it needs repairs they will have it repaired.

On several occasions I have asked for used Christmas wrappings and ribbons. Please send them to the Center.

If you have musical magazines such as 'Metronome,' 'Downbeat' etc., these are badly needed as are 'Omnibook,' 'Red Book.' 'American,' 'Mechanics,' 'Popular Science.' Detective magagines and 'Funnies,.' This is an urgent call so please respond at once. Many more sick and wounded have arrived and the call is greater than ever. Many of you have these articles but neglect to pick them up.

For every 50 hours you give to baking cookies or cakes you are given a Camp and Hospital pin. This pin is different from the other pins It has Camp and Hospital and underneath them the Red Cross You will be proud to wear it.

This year will be a hard year for us on the home front as well as for our men folks on the war fronts, so let's get together and do all we can by helping the Red Cross to function on the war fronts. Where your loved ones are, there you will find the Red Cross.

Call F-7704 and make a date to give your blood to help save the life of a fighting man or servicewoman.

Don't forget our women at the front. By helping Red Cross here on the home front, your help goes to those on the fighting front and to prison camps.

If you have any of the articles I have mentioned and cannot get up to Camp and Hospital Center at 4769 Del Monte Ave., please call B-5639 and we will pick them up.

—Nipem Lowe

ANSWER:

It is, as the insurance men say, a man's cash surrender value.

Right Now, For Instance

"How do you like school, little boy?" asked the kind old lady.

"When it's closed, ma'am," was the prompt reply.

It was during prohibition. The railway station was packed with a gay, going away throng. Over at one side of the waiting room stood a quiet little man figeting about, and attempting to hide himself from the crowd. A federal agent noticed that the stranger had something in his coat pocket from which drops were falling in slow trickles. The agent with a gleam in his eyes, collared the gent, put a finger out under the drops, caught one and tasted it. Then he spoke to the man, 'Scotch?' 'Nope' replied the stranger, 'Airdaile pup.'

A kindly old lady noticed a small, forlorn character standing on the corner. He appeared down and out, yet too proud to beg. One day, in a flood of compassion, she slipped a dollar into his hand and whispered, "Don't despair."

The following day as she passed, the little fellow stopped her and handed her nine dollars.

"What does this mean?" she asked.

"It means, mum, that Don't Despair won at 8 to 1."

OCEAN BEACH SCHOOL NEWS

Mrs. Roberta Conger's second grade class went on an excursion to the San Diego Municipal airport Thursday of last week. The children watched many interesting things that happened at the airport for one hour. The class saw the mainliners arrive from Los Angeles and what happened to plane and passengers after arriving. On returning to school the class made a small airport in the room. Mr. Noonan, Mrs. Olson, Mrs. Kail, and Mrs. Paulin took the children in their cars. Other parents had offered to use their precious gasoline so that the children would have the advantage of this excursion. Although all the cars were not needed, we appreciate this fine response.

The first grade in room 16, Mrs. Carmen Sikes' group, is studying airplanes, also. They are building an airport including hangars, waiting room with radio control tower and toy airplanes. Later they plan to build a big passenger plane in which they will take "rides." They will choose a pilot, a co-pilot and a stewardess. They also will have a steward, some mechanics, and some "Red Caps" who work at the airport.

The children in Mrs. Abbie Gail Karl's second grade are "air-minded," too, and they are determined to learn specific things about flying. They have turned the whole room into an airport. They are studying about Lindbergh field and the Navy airport at North Island. They are learning about the air, airports, airplanes and also about the weather. They are building a big air liner, large enough to seat four children, complete with dials, American insignia and ear phones. In one part of the room is the beacon with a real light blinking off and on. In another is the control tower where the operator directs the airplane on landing and taking off. The office where tickets may be bought for distant parts of the world also is arranged.

The student assembly was in charge of the sixth grade of room 19. They put on a quiz program and the questions covered current events, geography, and transportation.

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

By COL. ROBERT L. SCOTT

WNU Features.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I: Scott's early experiences with gliders and airplanes. He goes to Ft. McPherson and enlists in the regular army as a private.

CHAPTER II: Scott wins the West Point competitive exam and gets a furlough before reporting. He is graduated as a second lieutenant of infantry and goes to Europe, which he tours on a motorcycle. He sells his motorcycle and arrives at Randolph Field, Texas.

CHAPTER III: Scott makes his first solo flight. Drives 1,200 miles to Georgia over every week-end to see his girl. Scott is now graduated from Kelly Field and has wings pinned on his chest. Ordered to report to Hawaii but wanting to get married he lays his plight before the General and is ordered to report at Mitchel Field, N. Y., instead.

CHAPTER IV: En route to New York Scott is stopped by police who mistake him for a bandit. He carries the mail for Uncle Sam in order to gain more flying time, and gets married.

CHAPTER V: The war edges closer and he is farther than ever from combat duty. He has been told he is too old for combat flying, and after December 7, 1941, he begins writing Generals all over the country for a chance to fly a fighter plane.

CHAPTER VI: Scott solos a Flying Fortress for the first time and makes twenty practice landings. He leaves for India from a Florida point.

When one considers that the AVG fought in what the British called obsolete tactical combat aircraft—the P-40B's and P-40C's—their deeds and scores become truly legendary. Throughout China today, General Chennault's AVG are regarded as "Saviors of Free China Skies." The Chinese sentry on the gate to the "Fijichan" or airfield may shake his head when you show him your pass; he may not understand your hard-won Chinese; but when you smile and call, "A-V-G," his face lights up in turn, and he calls, "Ding-hao—you are 'number one.'" He holds his thumb up in the old familiar signal, and you enter. Then, to show his high regard for Americans and his vivid memory of General Chennault's Flying Tigers, he calls after you, "A-V-G mean American Very Good—ding-hao, ding-hao."

We caught up with three more of our thirteen bombers at Kano, and all our crew had begun to feel confident that we could not be called back from the mission against Tokyo. To insure this to a greater degree, we were trying hard, without appearing to be too anxious, to be the first to reach our initial point—Karachi, India. So long as we were the first of the B-17's, we could claim a moral victory. For after all, Colonel Haynes was boss, and in a ship with longer range than the Fortress and we wanted him ahead.

With full service aboard, and the temperature hot and stifling, even after nightfall, we threaded our way through the dust for the take-off. I remember that the heavy ship used the entire runway and some of the sagebrush prairie land too, for there seemed to be no lift whatever to the hot, dead air. Finally reaching a comfortable cruising altitude at twelve thousand, Doug and I breathed the old familiar sigh of relief at having once again gotten a loaded bomber in the air, and the sigh echoed around the ship.

Down in the dust haze not a light showed as we crossed equatorial Africa where Sergeant Aaltonen and Cobb wanted so much to land for a look at the big-lipped Ubangi women. Then Lake Chad and Fort Lamy went by. Just before dawn we crossed North of the mountain of El-Fasher. At six o'clock the White Nile appeared—we had crossed the western part of the Sudan. Our landing was made at Khartoum, where the Blue Nile and the White Nile meet.

On April 8, we left Khartoum for an easy run to Aden, on a course which was almost due East over the mountains of Eritrea. We went on over Gura and Massaua to the Red Sea. On our left we could see Yemen, and farther South and to our right, Somaliland. Reaching the South end of the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden, the well-known landmarks, the Rocks of Aden, appeared about noon. Next day we'd make the run on to India.

The British garrison commander took care of us that night. But around the dinner table there suddenly dropped a blanket of despair. The London radio announced that Bataan had fallen. After the first comment we settled down to worry. Part of our mission was to bomb Jap concentrations around Bataan and Corregidor. Would this development cause that part of the attack to be called off? Again the fear of being frustrated in our effort to take the offensive clutched my heart. It seemed that once again help had been started too late.

We had caught the last of the B-17's at Aden, and next morning we got up an extra hour early for the take-off. Our Fortress was straining to get to the initial point just behind the B-24. Success was in sight.

At 5:50 we were climbing over the beach of southern Arabia, and as the light improved we all agreed that Arabia was a rugged-looking land. After the terrible stories about the mutilation of forced-down flyers at the hands of the tribesmen, we all were glad that we had the little cards written in Arabic, promising high payment to the Arabs if we were delivered unharmed to the nearest British outpost.

We followed the Arabian coast over the blue waters of the Arabian sea to the Gulf of Oman, and then crossed to Karachi.

Colonel Haynes, with the B-24, had gone to Delhi. Our orders were to wait at Karachi. And now for two weeks we anxiously waited, while the rumors flew.

I think I shall always associate India with my first impression on getting out of my ship. No one seemed to know anything. Behind us lay twelve thousand miles, which we had made in eight days—for what? No one stood there with orders to expedite our departure. Instead they appeared to think we had ferried this ship for them to use in training. Training, mind you—here, halfway round the world and in a country that faced attack any moment! When we explained as much as we could about our secret orders, smiles came to the officers' faces. Bets were laid that we would never leave Karachi with those ships. But we were volunteers, and our combat spirit was still there. I remember that all my crew took the bets, as fast as they were offered. But we lost.

LOCAL CLUB PRESIDENT INVITED TO DINNER OF CITY'S CIVIC LEADERS

Mrs. C. W. Early, president of the Ocean Beach Woman's club, was an invited guest at a dinner party, held at the U. S. Grant hotel at 6 o'clock Friday evening, at which 25 of the women civic leaders of the city had been invited. Mrs. W. E. Adams, president of the county Federation of Women's clubs, presided, and the main speaker was Mrs. Earl J. Hazelton of Orland, Calif., chairman of international relations and post-war planning of the California Federation of Women's clubs. A round table discussion followed her talk.

Woman's Club Of Ocean Beach Past 100-Member Mark

The Ocean Beach Woman's club is now past the 100-mark in membership, Mrs. C. W. Early, the president, reported this week. Twenty-nine new members have been admitted since the first of the new club year of 1944-1945, bringing the total up to 103.

Inter-club day was observed at the January meeting of the club, held Jan. 11, with Mrs. Earl J. Hazelton of Orland, Calif., chairman of international relations and post-war planning for the California Federation of Women's clubs, as the main speaker. She urged the women to add their voices to the force of public opinion, particularly in the formation of this nation's foreign policy and censured the state department at Washington for its "non-committal" attitude in regard to liberated countries of Europe.

"We must oppose the return anywhere of ultra-conservative Fascism if we are to hold the friendship of the mass of Europe's people," she said. "Particularly must we know definitely what form of government we believe in when we go into Germany. This is a war within a war and fighting will go on after the enemy nations are defeated. It is a social revolution. It exists in every country in Europe and has reverberations in Britain and the United States. We must recognize that revolution or we are simply headed for a third world war. The only cure is a United Nations organization based on workable ideas of justice and which avoids the old war-breeding game of power politics."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. David A. Fraser of San Diego, state trustee for the Southern District Federation of Women's clubs.

Both the Mission Beach and the Pacific Beach Women's clubs had large delegations at the meeting, the audience totaling nearly 100 women. The visiting guests were introduced by Mrs. Early. Mrs. Frank Stemen, chairman of narcotics committee for the San Diego County Federation of Women's clubs, was introduced and spoke briefly. The Mission Beach delegation was headed by Mrs. Alvin Werre, the club president; and the Pacific Beach delegation by Mrs. Robert Knight, the club's vice president. Miss Kate Spani, past president of the local club also was on the platform.

Special music, was arranged by Mrs. Paul Hendrickson, the program chairman, included selections by the Sweetwater high school string quartet, played as a feature of the program and during the tea hour that followed. Presiding at the tea tables were Mrs. C. W. Varney and Mrs. C. A. Baker. In charge of the tea hour was Mrs. Lyle Burkett, hospitality chairman, and her assistants included Mmes. James B. Abbey, W. B. Oster, J. P. Miller, Frank L. Swezey, G. E. Paulin and Gladys Wilcox.

As a special courtesy to Mrs. Hazelton, the club directors served a luncheon at the club-house preceding the program, with Mrs. Glen Jones and Mrs. Ella Smith in charge of the serving.

TWO COUPLES, NEWLYWEDS OF DANA JUNIOR FACULTY FETED AT PALMER HOME

Mrs. Phoebe Palmer and Mrs. Marion Hage, entertained members of the Dana Junior high school faculty and their wives and husbands Sunday afternoon at a tea, honoring newlywed members of the faculty. The honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yates and Captain (USMC) and Mrs. Richard Baldwin. Mr. Yates is chairman of the Dana science department and Mrs. Baldwin (formerly Miss Florence Wainwright) is the school librarian. The tea was held in Mrs. Palmer's home at 2218 Juan St.

LITERATURE GROUP WILL HEAR BOOK REVIEW OF "JOSEPH THE PROVIDER"

Literature group of the Ocean Beach Woman's club will hear a book review by Mrs. Arthur Crom of Pacific Beach at their next regular meeting to be held at the clubhouse, 2160 Bacon St., next Monday evening, Jan. 22, at 8 o'clock. She will review the book, "Joseph the Provider," by Thomas Mann.

At the Jan. 8 meeting, the group heard Mrs. Virginia Bartlett give a review of the book, "The Great Answer," by Margaret Runbeck. A general discussion followed on the books of the year 1944 as listed by Time Magazine, in which several of the members took part. At the close of the afternoon the hostess committee, consisting of Mrs. Lloyd N. Davis and Mrs. T. Sundberg, served refreshments.

News Of Marriage Of Chas. Goeb In New York Received

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Goeb Sr. of 1755 Sunset Cliffs Blvd. have reecived announcement of the wedding of their son, Chas. A. Goeb Jr., and Miss Edith Andersen of Ames, Iowa, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Andersen of that city. The marriage took place in New York City, where the young man, who is on duty with the Navy, is stationed. A motor machinist's mate, second class, he recently returned from 18 months of service overseas, mostly in the Mediterranean area of the war in Europe and Africa. Date of the wedding was Tuesday, Dec. 26.

The groom, who grew up here and attended all the Ocean Beach schools, left Point Loma High in his senior year and enlisted at 17 in the Navy. He studied printing while in the high school and was employed for a few months by The Ocean Beach News.

His wife is with him in New York City in an apartment which they plan to occupy while he is stationed in the eastern metropolis.

"EVERYBODY LOSES
WHEN FOOD PRICES GO UP"
Servicemen's families and others living on fixed incomes are the first to suffer . . . BUT EVENTUALLY EVERYBODY LOSES when food prices go up. Because our dollars simply buy less. Help protect the value of your earnings and your savings. Help protect America's future. It's smart and patriotic to . . .
